The image shows a presentation slide titled "Decentralization" with a list of four points and a conclusion. A small video call window is visible in the bottom right corner of the slide, showing a person's face. The slide content is as follows:

4. Relief to top level management. In the presence of decentralization, top level managers are not overburdened with the responsibilities and authority as they systematically pass the authority and responsibilities at different levels and they become free to concentrate on core and important issues.

5. Facilitates growth. Decentralization grants more autonomy or freedom to lower level. This helps the subordinates to do the work in the manner best suited for their department. When each department is doing their best their productivity increases and it will generate more revenue which can be used for expansion.

6. Better control. In decentralization, employees working at different levels take their own decisions and they are personally accountable for their decisions. They cannot pass the blame to their superiors. With decentralization better control can be exercised through Score Card, Management Information System, etc.

Conclusion

As a conclusion it must be noted that despite of its benefits decentralization should be applied with caution and care as it can lead to disintegration of organization if departments start
